

The Big Picture – Seven Year End Report

Announcer: The United States Army presents The Big Picture, an official report produced for the armed forces and the American people.

Narrator: September 14, 1945, a war is ended in the Pacific. July 1950, Korea, a general and his men record a page of military history. In the United States, American cities protected by rings of steel. Louisiana, fall of 1955, Operation Sagebrush, one of the Army's largest peacetime maneuvers. Florida, January 1958, the free world's first satellite is launched.

Sergeant Stuart Queen: These are just some of the exciting events that have been brought to you on The Big Picture. Now this is Sergeant Stuart Queen, your host for The Big Picture.

Director: Cut. Fine. Okay, let's print that one. Alright, wrap it up for the day. Uh, Stuart tomorrow we're gonna take project 196909. Would you take a look at it tomorrow?

Sergeant Stuart Queen: Alright, you bet.

Director: Alright, okay. Goodnight.

Sergeant Stuart Queen: Thanks again, Martin.

You've just been watching the filming of a part of The Big Picture. This is a special occasion for all of us backstage here on The Big Picture. It's our seventh anniversary. Today we'd like to relive some of memorable events that Big Picture cameras have brought you, during the past seven...