The following system should be added to the ADAMHA Records Control Schedule, B-311, Part II Program Records. This system is new to the agency as a result of transfer of the program from the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Drug Abuse Warning Network (DAWN)

a. Description

DAWN is a large-scale data collection system, the goal of which is to gather, interpret, and disseminate data on drug abuse within the continental United States. Specifically, it identifies drugs currently being abused and/or harmful to the individual and to society, permits the determination of existing patterns of drug abuse, allows the monitoring of changes in trends and provides data needed for the rational control and scheduling of both presently existing and new substances of potential abuse. DAWN is used to identify the epidemiology of drug use and abuse so that effective action can be taken at the Federal, State, and local levels.
