Series also contains (in box 13) an "Overview of Metric Conversion in the United States -- 1983," which was prepared by consultants for Metric Commission Canada (MCC).

In January 1970, the Canadian Government published the White Paper on Metric Conversion in Canada. This paper became the basis for establishing MCC by Order in Council (Preparatory Commission, June 10, 1971). The decision to establish the metric program by administrative decree rather than through legislative enactment was a weakness in the Canadian system and a source of complaint by opponents of metrification. The parallel but independent Interdepartmental Committee for Metric Conversion was established to convert internal governmental operations to metric.
