Sequence Number
1	TARGET MATERIALS PRODUCTION (TMP) The TMP system provides intelligence analysts with the capability to assist operational forces and planners exploit various targets to carry out Fire and Close Air Support missions. It enables precision fires and improved geolocation through manipulation of aerial imagery. TMP workstations utilize various intelligence imagery to perform precision targeting, very much like the Air Force ATMP and the Navy DCGS system and can be used tactically/for training or for evaluation of said missions. Inclusive dates are 20111201to ongoing.
1.1	MASTER FILES

Data includes but is not limited to tactical intelligence relating to actual conditions and circumstances to achieve a mission. Most of the intelligence data used in precision targeting comes in the form of imagery and satellite data or imagery from remote sensors or cameras, data is then input into the system with the classified BAE software that adds height and dimension to the image that allows for targeting to be completed for various weapons systems using the 3D capabilities within the system. The imagery is not scanned data but saved live data 99% of the time.
