MEMORANDUM TO THE FILE

From: Jeremy P. Schmidt, ACRA

Re: Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Comprehensive Classification Records (NC1-065-82-04)

The FBI Comprehensive Classification Records schedule (NC1-065-82-04) has its origin in the case American Friends Service Committee, et al. v. William H. Webster, et al., tried in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia (Civ. A. No. 79-1655). Plaintiffs who filed suit against the FBI and the National Archives claimed that the FBI's record destruction program violated various laws and interfered in a number of respects with their rights and interests. The case was brought by groups and individuals who needed to access FBI records: as part of their professional duties (historians, journalists, attorneys, etc.); to bring suits against the FBI for alleged wrongdoings; and to publicize actions by the FBI for organizational, educational, and political purposes.

Judge Harold H. Greene in his opinion, issued on January 10, 1980, found that the National Archives failed to carry out its statutory and regulatory records management responsibilities with respect to the records of the FBI. Judge Greene ordered the National Archives and the FBI to prepare and submit to the Court a retention plan and disposition schedule for the records of the FBI. Previous schedules were determined to be inadequate since the National Archives staff did not review the FBI records, and retention determinations for specific records were made by FBI staff based on a set of vague criteria.

In response to the court order, the National Archives provided to the Court on November 9, 1981, a report, titled "Appraisal of the Records of the Federal Bureau of Investigation: A Report to Hon. Harold H. Greene, United States District Court for the District of Columbia." The report included the comprehensive disposition schedule (NC1-065-82-04) approved by the Archivist of the United States on November 9, 1981. The schedule, however, contained a number of substantial errors. NC1-065-82-04 schedule items in part "B" (7, 9, 24, 31, 39, 73, 83, 181, 186, and 187) and in part "D" (46, 61, 81, 88, 166, 177, 192, and 212) were later amended by NC1-065-82-05 (approved on December 30, 1981) to correct these errors. Part "F" of NC1-065-82-04 was also amended by NC1-065-82-05.

Neither the National Archives, the FBI, nor the Court possess a copy of the complete NC1-065-82-04 schedule. It is likely that copies of the first submission of the report (schedule, appraisal, and profile sheets) were discarded upon submission of the amended version to ensure no one was working from the wrong copy. Because the schedule was developed in response to a court order, it appears that the National Archives never created a traditional dossier for the NC1-065-82-04 schedule.

The majority of the NC1-065-82-04 schedule is represented in the amended FBI appraisal report, with the exception of those pages that were impacted by changes in NC1-065-82-05, which were discarded, except for Part D item 88. Using an annotated draft of select pages of NC1-065-82-04, which represented the original version, pages from the amended version of NC1-065-82-04 in volume 1 of the report to the Court that were unchanged from the original, and the affidavit the National Archives submitted to the Court on January 8, 1982, reporting the changes made to NC1-065-82-04, I was able to reconstruct NC1-065-82-04 with a great degree of certainty and completeness.

Below is the reconstructed NC1-065-82-04 schedule. It is primarily the schedule found in the amended FBI appraisal report, issued on January 8, 1982. I have inserted reconstructed schedule items for those items changed by NC1-065-82-05. Those items are on their own pages indicated by the heading "Reconstructed." In the few cases where there is uncertainty about the original language, a note appears in brackets. Part "F" NC1-065-82-04 was revised in NC1-065-82-05 as well. I have used the NC1-065-82-05 schedule part "F" and struck through additions to the NC1-065-82-04 original content. Also, three of the sample sizes have changed. I have struck through the NC1-065-82-05 figures and replaced them with those from NC1-065-82-04 when known. Notes related to these changes appear in brackets.

James Bradsher, a member of the NARA FBI Appraisal Taskforce, wrote two articles on the FBI appraisal project, please see: James Gregory Bradsher, "The FBI Records Appraisal," The Midwestern Archivist XIII, no. 2 (1988): 51-66. This article was re-printed and slightly enlarged to include "lessons learned" in Archival Issues 25, nos. 1 and 2 (2000): 101-117. For discussions of the lawsuit and appraisal, see Athan G. Theoharis, "The National Archives and FBI Records," Government Publication Review 10 (May-June 1983): 251-255; John Anthony Scott, AHA Newsletter "The FBI Files: A Challenge for Historians" (March 1980); and Susan D. Steinwall, "Appraisal and the FBI Files Case: For Whom Do Archivists Retain Records?" American Archivist 49, No.1 (Winter 1986) 52-63.

The report itself was published by the Archives on microfilm as M1847 Corrected Version, January 8, 1982, of "Appraisal of the Records of the Federal Bureau of Investigation: A Report to Hon. Harold H. Greene, United States District Court for the District of Columbia: Submitted by the National Archives and Records Service and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, November 9, 1981". The records of the taskforce are in the holdings of the National Archives, see <https://catalog.archives.gov/id/3477983> for a description of the records.

	INTRODUCTION OF THE DISPOSITION SCHEDULE OF THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (FBI) The records included in this schedule encompass the records maintained at FBI Headquarters, field and Legal Attache offices, including, but not limited to, the Central Records System. As of December 3, 1980, the FBI had established 214 classifications in its basic filing system. They pertain to Federal violations over which the FBI has investigative jurisdiction and include personnel, applicant and administrative matters. The records contained in the system are used by the FBI in support of its mission to conduct investigations within its jurisdiction and for various administrative purposes. Information from the files is disseminated to appropriate Federal, state, local and foreign agencies and Note: This schedule is valid for pre-Universal Case File Number system only. to private citizens and Congressional offices when the right and need to have access to this information exist. The system consists of a numerical sequence of subject matter files, an alphabetical index to the files, and an automated system to facilitate processing and accountability of the documents which system has replaced the dual manual abstract system. Field offices and Legal Attache offices operate in much the same manner, but without abstracts. All information on a given subject matter or case is channeled into one file. In order to facilitate control of the file and accommodate multiple subject(s) matters, a numerical system is used to indicate: (a) general classification or nature of violation, (b) the individual case file in the category, and (c) the serialization of individual documents. Therefore, the file number 7-100-10 would indicate the 10th piece of mail in the 100th file assigned to the Kidnapping (7) classification. In order to best portray the mission and identify the functions of the FBI, cases at Headquarters have been selected through a systematic sampling procedure and by "exceptional case" and multisection (two or more sections) distinctions. The systematic sample will produce a minimum number of records within a classification to document FBI procedures in conducting investigations. Designation of the exceptional case category evolved from review of files, controversial subject matter, and suggestions from outside historical consultants. Implementation of the systematic sampling alone will produce approximately 100,000 cases (opened before 1978) for eventual transfer to the National Archives.

	While the schedule will generally permit disposal of field office records, certain field office classifications have been designated for permanent retention. All exhibits, bulkies, subs, attachments and enclosures would accompany case files which have been evaluated as permanent for eventual transfer to the National Archives. Provisions have been made in the schedule to retain disposable files beyond the approved retention periods to satisfy both investigative and administrative needs and obligations. The disposition schedule for the FBI has been divided into six parts. Four parts (A-D) provide general disposition and specific disposition authorities for Headquarters and field office records. Part E contains instructions for disposition of miscellaneous categories, including indices, interesting case summaries, and the General Records Schedules. Part F furnishes guidance to implement the systematic sampling. Categories are divided as follows: Part A: General Disposition Authorities for Headquarters Case Files Page 5 Part B: Disposition Authorities for Individual Classifications for Headquarters Case Files . . . 	PART A GENERAL DISPOSITION AUTHORITIES FOR HEADQUARTERS CASE FILES The following authorities will be used for the disposition of the Headquarters records described below. These authorities apply regardless of the classification under which the records are filed. 1. "OO" Files. Policy and procedural documentation regarding the FBI's administration of investigations conducted under individual violations or classifications. Records include internal memoranda, correspondence with other Federal agencies and with the Attorney General, directives establishing new policies and procedures, memoranda exchanged with Special Agents in Charge, drafts of legislation, and Executive Conference minutes and proposals. These "OO" files are found at the beginning of each classification preceding the sequentially numbered case files. PERMANENT. Offer to NARS in 10 year blocks when 50 years old. Per 1995 memo regarding E.O. 12958 2. "O" Files. These records consist of a blend of documents, including those described in Item 1 above, as well as routine correspondence with the general public. Also included are records relating to nonsubstantive investigations of such routine character that a separate case file was not justified. In a number of classifications, the initial sections of "O" files are almost exclusively policy and procedural in nature. Subsequent sections will be screened by FBI so that any policy and procedural records can be filed within the "OO" files. These "O" files are physically maintained in front of the "OO" files at the beginning of each classification.

Policy and procedural documentation found⁹ in subsequent "O" files. PERMANENT. See Item 1 above. c. "O" files dated after 1977 but excluding (b) above. DISPOSAL NOT AUTHORIZED d. All remaining records filed in the "O" files unless otherwise specified in Part B. (1) Security and applicant classifications. DESTROY when 30 years old. (2) Criminal classifications. DESTROY when 20 years old. NOTE: Additional disposition authorities for "O" files are listed in Part B. In some⁹ classifications a specific date is provided to discriminate between (a) and (b) above.
3.	Exceptional Case Files. These cases document the FBI's investigation of a significant individual, event or organization; or evidence a precedent-setting program; or in some other way constitute a landmark case. A large number of exceptional cases have been identified by representatives of the Archivist of the United States during their review of FBI cases and of the interesting case summaries (see Part E, Item 4). In addition, a number of potential exceptional cases have been recommended by historians, social scientists,⁹ and other experts outside the Federal Bureau specials, Major Cases, Bureau-identified test cases and field office designated historical files. b. Cases mentioned in annual reports of the Bureau, where the identification of such cases is evident from a review of the Headquarters file. c. Cases mentioned in FBI testimony before or submitted in evidence to a Committee of Congress, where the identification of such cases is apparent from a review of the Headquarters file. d. Cases accepted by the Supreme Court that involved FBI investigative activities, where identification of such cases is possible through a review of the Headquarters file. e. All control files other than "O" files. f. All cases permanently retained in whole in the Headquarters Special File Room. g. Ten Most Wanted Criminals. h. In Headquarters, all cases that have one or more separate sections of newspaper clippings (Sub A). i. Code Name or Code Word Captioned Cases. All cases with either a Code Name (CN) or Code Word (CW) in the caption in which the intent is to conceal the type of operation or investigation. This does not include Bureau abbreviations for violations or classifications (e.g. ITAR, SSA).

7. ITEM NO	8. DESCRIPTION OF ITEM (With Inclusive Dates or Retention Periods)	9. SAMPLE OR JOB NO	10. ACTION TAKEN
	PART F IMPLEMENTATION OF SYSTEMATIC SAMPLES A sample of cases consists of a relatively small number of records selected from a larger number in such a way that accurate generalizations about the larger collection of cases can be derived from the characteristics of the sampled cases. This records disposition schedule provides for systematic samples, based on a specified numerical ratio and involve a sample size, a sampling ratio, and a random begin point. For example, class X has 11,595 cases and the sample size is 2,500. The sample ratio is obtained by dividing the sample size (2500) into the total number of cases (11,595) and equals 4.6. The random begin point always lies between 1 and the sampling ratio. A table of random numbers will be consulted to determine this random begin point. If the begin point is 3, then the first case file to be selected is 3 and every fifth case file would be selected until a total of 2500 cases are identified. The random number start should be changed each time after 20 percent of the sample has been selected. Any random number between the begin point and the sampling ratio can be selected. → This disposition schedule provides for two types of systematic samples. Evidential samples are taken to document various policies, procedures, and investigative techniques adopted by the Bureau. Informational samples are taken to capture data on significant individuals, organizations, events or other topics which will be of interest to future researchers. When preparing permanent records for transfer to the National Archives, the FBI will identify and segregate the sampled cases first. Any additional permanent records, such as multisection cases, will be separated only after the sample has been taken. Thus any multisection cases selected as part of the sample will remain a physical part of the sampled records.
