Disposal Job No. 345-264

- N Records that do not appear to have sufficient administrative, legal, research, or other value to warrant their continued preservation by the Government:
- N1 This item consists of case files on premises alleged to be nuisances because of the manufacture, sale, or presence of intoxicating liquor in violation of the National Prohibition Act, and to the issuance of injunctions to restrain defendants from conducting or permitting the continuance of such nuisances. These so-called "padlock" case files consist chiefly of formal legal documents, with a small quantity of correspondence with and investigative reports of Federal departments, and work papers and memoranda. The legal documents are identically duplicated by records in the files of the court. The bulk of the contents of the remainder of the records, including files on alleged violations investigated by prohibition enforcement officers but not prosecuted by the district attorney's office, is identically duplicated, or summarized, or duplicated in substance by records in the files of the Department of Justice or the Treasury. Records not duplicated elsewhere are believed to be ephemeral in character and of insufficient value to warrant their permanent preservation.
