	Knowledge Management (KM) System The KM system is a knowledge sharing community that enables users to access peer knowledge, preserve institutional knowledge and accelerate learning. The Communities of Practice (CoPs) provide a Web-enabled environment where networks of people with common interest, goals or expertise can work together to discuss issues, and share experiences, knowledge, information and best practices. External communities are accessible by FHWA customers and partners; internal communities are restricted to those with DOT network access. The content of this system consists of threaded discussions on transportation topics, unofficial documents and voluntary participant profiles. Content is organized by topic area and subject line for user access. The dates covered depend on when the CoP was created. The first CoPs maintained by HPC's Knowledge Application Team (KAT) were created in 2000.	New
