	PERMANENTLY VALUABLE RECORDS OF THE OLD BUREAU OF VALUATION STORED IN THE WNRC AND DOCUMENTATION IN THE ICC BUILDING DIRECTLY RELATED TO THOSE RECORDS The Bureau of Valuations was the unit of the Interstate Commerce Commission directly responsible for the valuation of the railroads of the United States. The records covered by this job provide detailed documentation pertaining to railroads from their beginning until the 1960s. Some of the records of the Old Bureau of Valuation that are stored in the Washington National Records Center do not have sufficient value to justify their permanent preservation in the National Archives. These disposable records are covered by Job No. N1-134-90-2. References to records covered by that job appear in this job. The segregation of the WNRC records of the old Bureau of Valuation into a job covering permanent records and a job covering disposable records allows the immediate accessioning into the National Archives of the valuation records having enduring value.
